The history of contact between the East and the West has been based on conflict rather than comprehension. Note the contrast. Rome embraced Christianity, based on its own decision for the empire beginning in the 4th Century under Emperor Constantine. Islam spread by military invasion, conquest, and occupation based on military force offering death, slavery, conversion, or second-class status with taxation penalties to the conquered peoples. By only one century, following the death of Mohammed, the Middle East and North Africa were converted to Islam.
